Public banks are financial institutions owned by public entities such as cities, counties, and joint powers authorities. A public bank’s deposit base consists primarily of tax revenues and fees which it leverages to issue loans, just like any bank. Unlike private banks, the interest and profit of a public bank belongs to the community.

Why Public Banks?
A public bank’s mission is to benefit the city or region that it serves. Wealth is reinvested locally!

Public banks provide a just and equitable solution to reclaim public monies from Wall Street banks that seek profit for shareholders. Public dollars can be used to create strong and sustainable local economies.

Divest from Wall Street
Mega-banks profit from financing fossil fuels, private prisons, weapons manufacturers, fraudulent business practices and other reprehensible activities that our communities are actively fighting against.

Grow Local Economies
